Make a Difference

The Public Health Association of Australia is the pre-eminent organisation for public health in Australia and works to promote the health and well-being of all Australians. The Association is an advocacy and capacity-building organisation which seeks better population health outcomes based on prevention, the social determinants of health and equity principles. The PHAA actively engages with governments at all levels on a wide range of health issues such as alcohol, tobacco, obesity, food policy, climate change, environmental health, injury prevention, oral health, justice health, and men's and women's health, as well as issues relating to health care reform. The Association's strength is firmly grounded in the combined knowledge and influence of over 1500 individual members representing more than 40 professions.

By joining PHAA you become part of an active network with a focus on influencing public health policies and strategies. For members seeking further involvement, there are opportunities to contribute individually and through State Branches and Special Interest Groups. The PHAA's new fee structure means that it is now more affordable than ever before to have a voice in advocating for a healthier society.
